TOPOGRAPHY & LOCATION

The Serai is a reflection of the royal caravan sites of Rajputana, blending the dash and vivacity of this 'Land of Kings' with the colourful history of their travels and journeys across this earth. Set on a one-hundred-acre private estate of indigenous desert scrub away from the bustle of the city, The Serai is ideally located for venturing into the mystical environs of Jaisalmer and a discovery its fabled, 12th century "Golden Fortress", now a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The immaculate white tents set upon platforms of Jaisalmer's golden hued stone rise up from the heart of the Thar.

EXPERIENCES

Excursions from The Serai inspire exploration and discovery in what is essentially still a largely unexplored region. Soft dunes give way to the almost wool like shrubbery and bursts of acacia wooded patches which host foxes, the desert cat and the elusive Indian gazelle. For Birders and Twitchers alike, the area around camp has dozens of species – some of them migratory – to tick off. Yet, it is the traditions and particularly musical heritage of this land that has found fame abroad and drawn the attention of a world craving the authentic, the real and raw interaction with local culture that has deep – and ancient – roots in Jaisalmer and its villages. The Manganiars, whom you can read about more in our other literature are perhaps even older than the forts around their villages and their ancestral melodies continue to resonate across these sands. Guests can travel on excursions – on camel or if they prefer in our especially modified 4x4s – and visit villages or unravel the encounters of a days progress over sundowners. The Serai offers relaxation as few other places do.
